

called Food for Talk, a 30-minute weekly show during which he interviews New Jersey food industry hotshots like Food Council President Linda Doherty and Hoboken Farms owner Brad Finkel. Dorman is “emerging as leading role in all food matters, and his new podcast highlights the powerful voices of the industry as he tells their stories,” Doherty said.

Danielle Dvorak

Dvorak is senior tax manager at Friedman LLP. As a member of the NJCPA’s Emerging Leaders Council, a member of the Strategic Planning Committee and a director of the Bergen Chapter, she is evidently dedicated to the NJCPA and the accounting profession. Dvorak also gives back through volunteering at the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) project, Habitat for Humanity, Community Food Bank and others.

Travis Epp

Epp runs a large foodspace practice at EisnerAmper in Iselin with another NJBIZ Power 50 honoree, Howard Klein. He is a “skilled collaborator and engaged marketer at all levels for food business,” one insider noted. Epp is an audit partner and the partner-in-charge of EisnerAmper’s manufacturing and distribution group. He focuses on private companies in the middle market. Epp’s three decades of experience included the role of senior financial officer at a family enterprise, where he was the certifying financial officer for two publicly traded companies.

John Evans

Evans brings more than 42 years of experience in corporate tax to his role as the partner-in-charge of Marks Paneth’s Parsippany office, specializing in tax issues affecting closely held businesses and their owners. He has served both public and private multinational companies in a wide range of industries including consumer business, technology, professional services firms, manufacturing, distribution, wholesale and retail. And Evans has assisted businesses with structuring and restructuring their operations through mergers, acquisitions, divestitures and expansion into both domestic and foreign markets. He is recognized for his expertise on tax matters and has written for and been interviewed by publications such as The Wall Street Journal, Forbes, Fortune, USA Today Inc., Bottom Line for Business and Crain’s New York Business. Evans has been a featured guest on radio and television broadcasts including CNBC, CNN, Fox Business Cable Network and Smart Money TV’s Small Business webcast.

Marge Filippelli

Filippelli is office managing partner in Roseland and is a member of the Real Estate Group. Her extensive experience in the real estate industry encompasses a full range of audit and consulting services to real estate owners, operators and developers, including financial statement audits, reviews, compilations for office, residential, retail, hotel, industrial properties, and investment companies. Filippelli also handles acquisition due diligence, special-purpose audits including operating expenses, certiorari and agreed-upon procedures reports. Before joining Marcum, Filippelli was a partner with Cornerstone Accounting Group LLP when the two firms merged in 2013. She is an active member of both the New Jersey State Society of Certified Public Accountants and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, and is also a member of the National Council of Real Estate Investment Fiduciaries (NCREIF).

